Profile

I am a logical, ambitious, hard working, and energetic person who loves learning, teaching, and empowering others. I spent more than 4 years teaching English for non-native speakers.

Two years ago, I have made a career shift learning web development. As a web developer, I work hard to learn new technologies and enhance my knowledge base. I also believe that the best way of learning is by spreading knowledge, so I participate in many offline and online small devs groups helping them to start their career as web developers. Now I work as front-end developer at Zwaar Network.
